

F
O
R
U
M

B
Y
G
G A

S
K
O
L
A

Magnus Anclair

Founder of the Swedish platform
"Forum Bygga Skola" -
Forum Building Schools

Why are we here?

Why are we here?

The short answer: we have societies we want to develop further

We have societies we want to develop further and we see the schools as a tool for that

We have societies we want to develop further and we see the schools as a tool for that

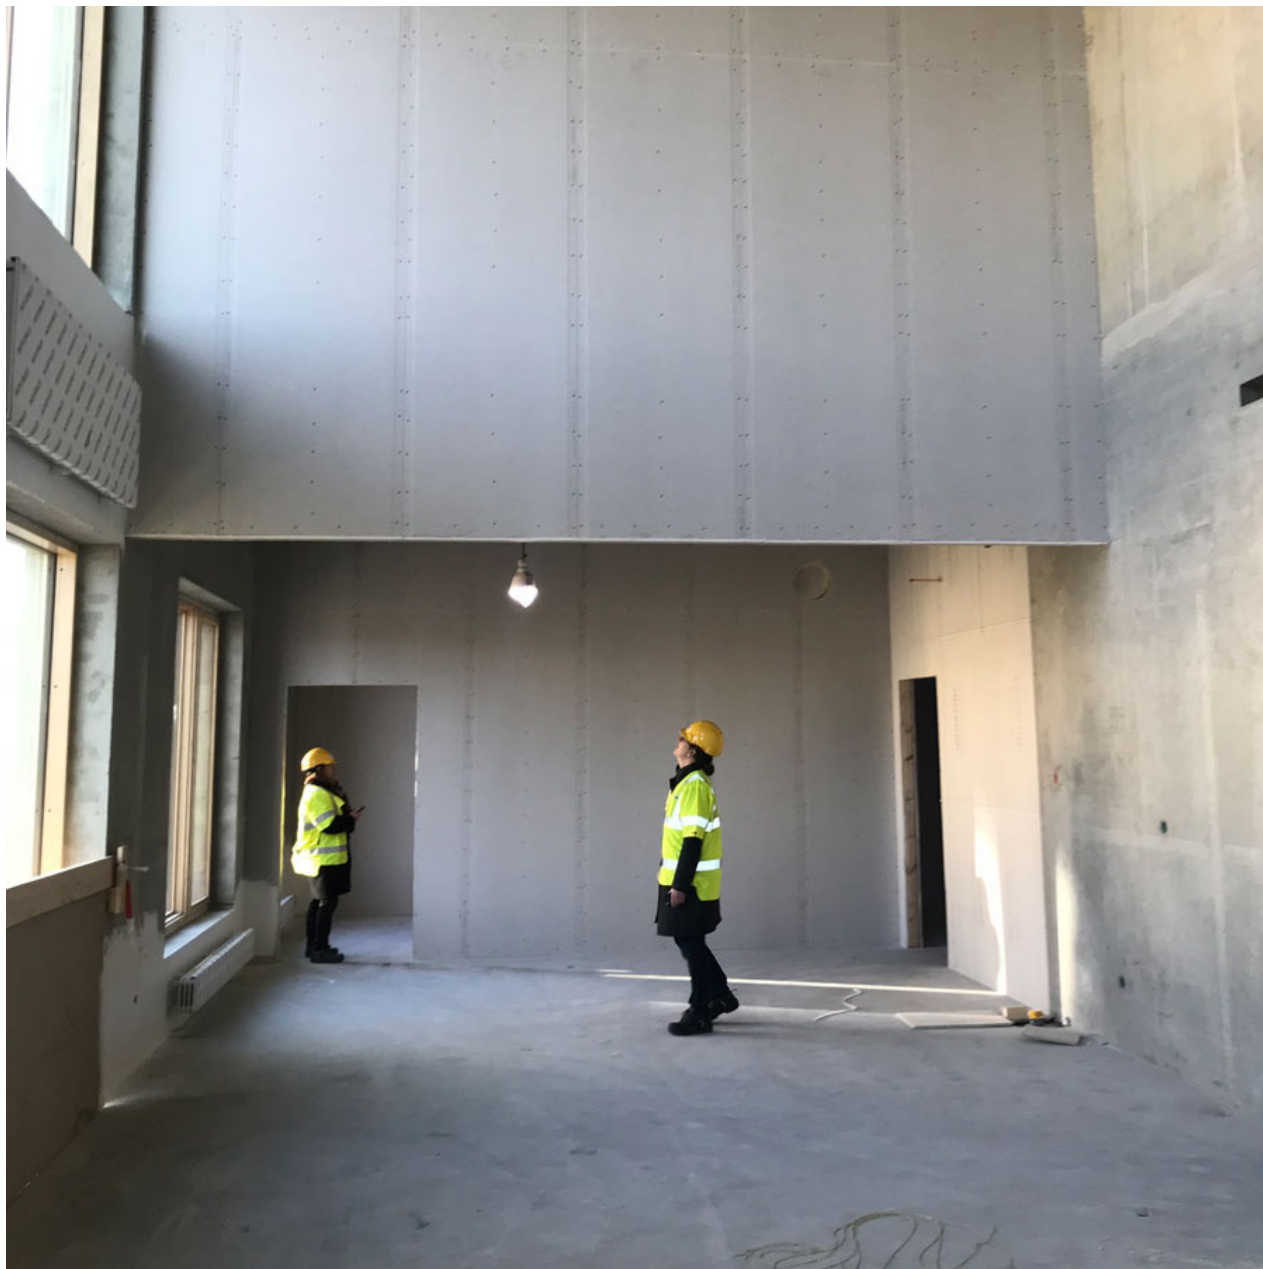

Then – what is a good school?

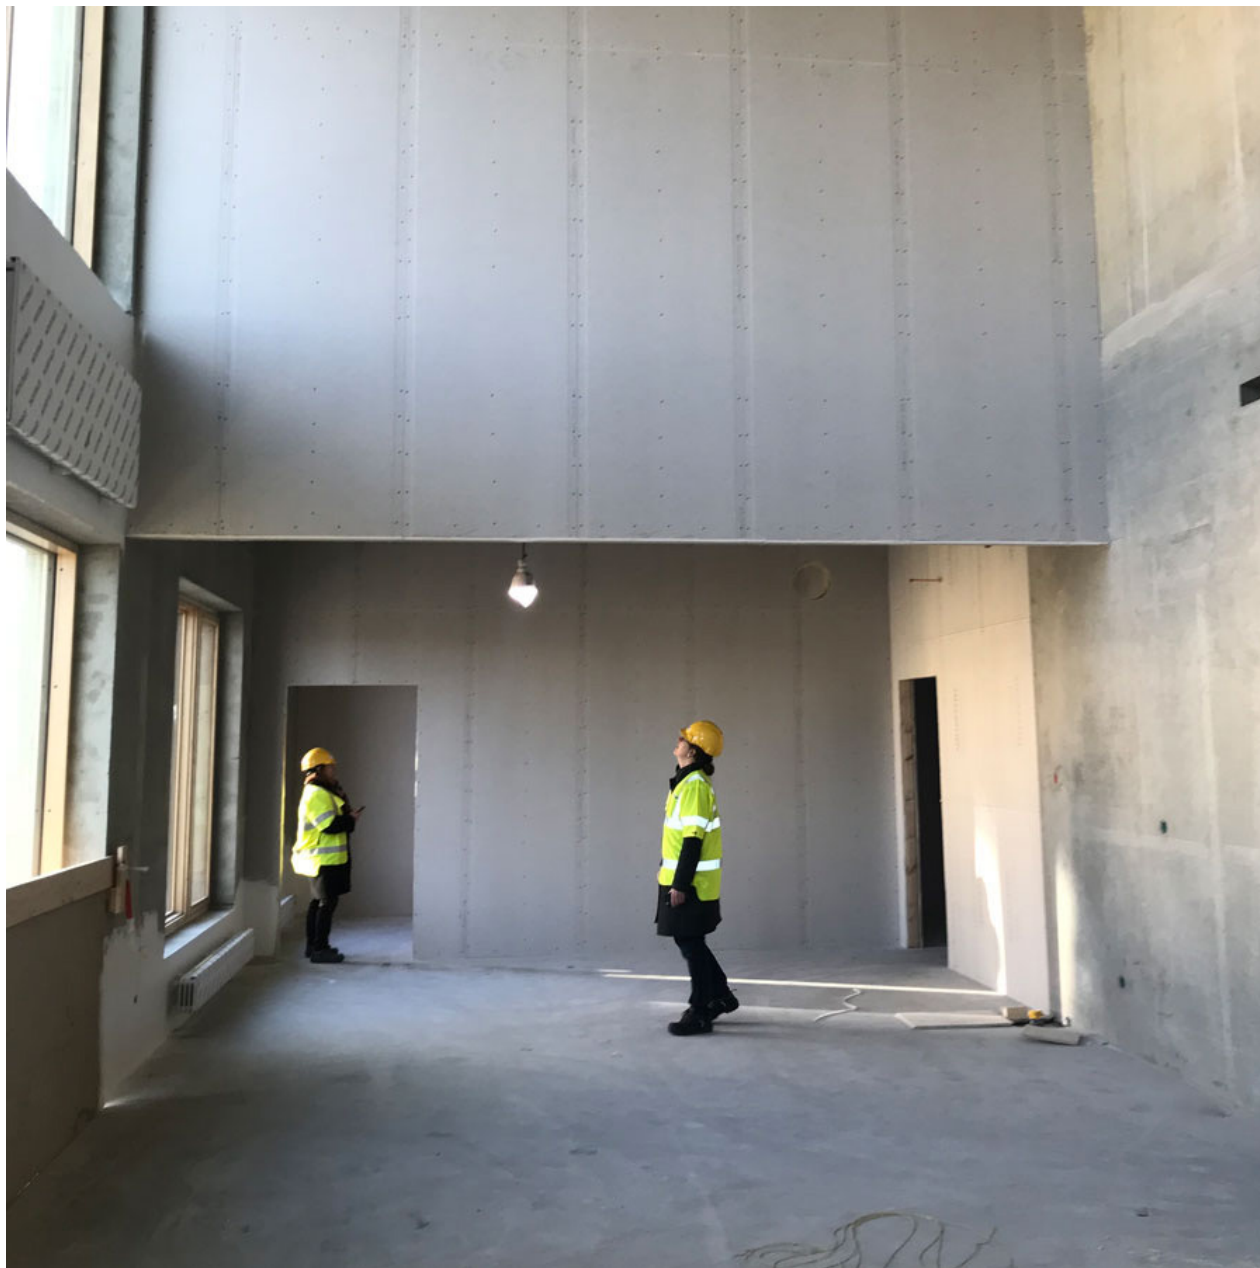

And how can the design and functions of the schoolbuildings and outdoor environments support that?

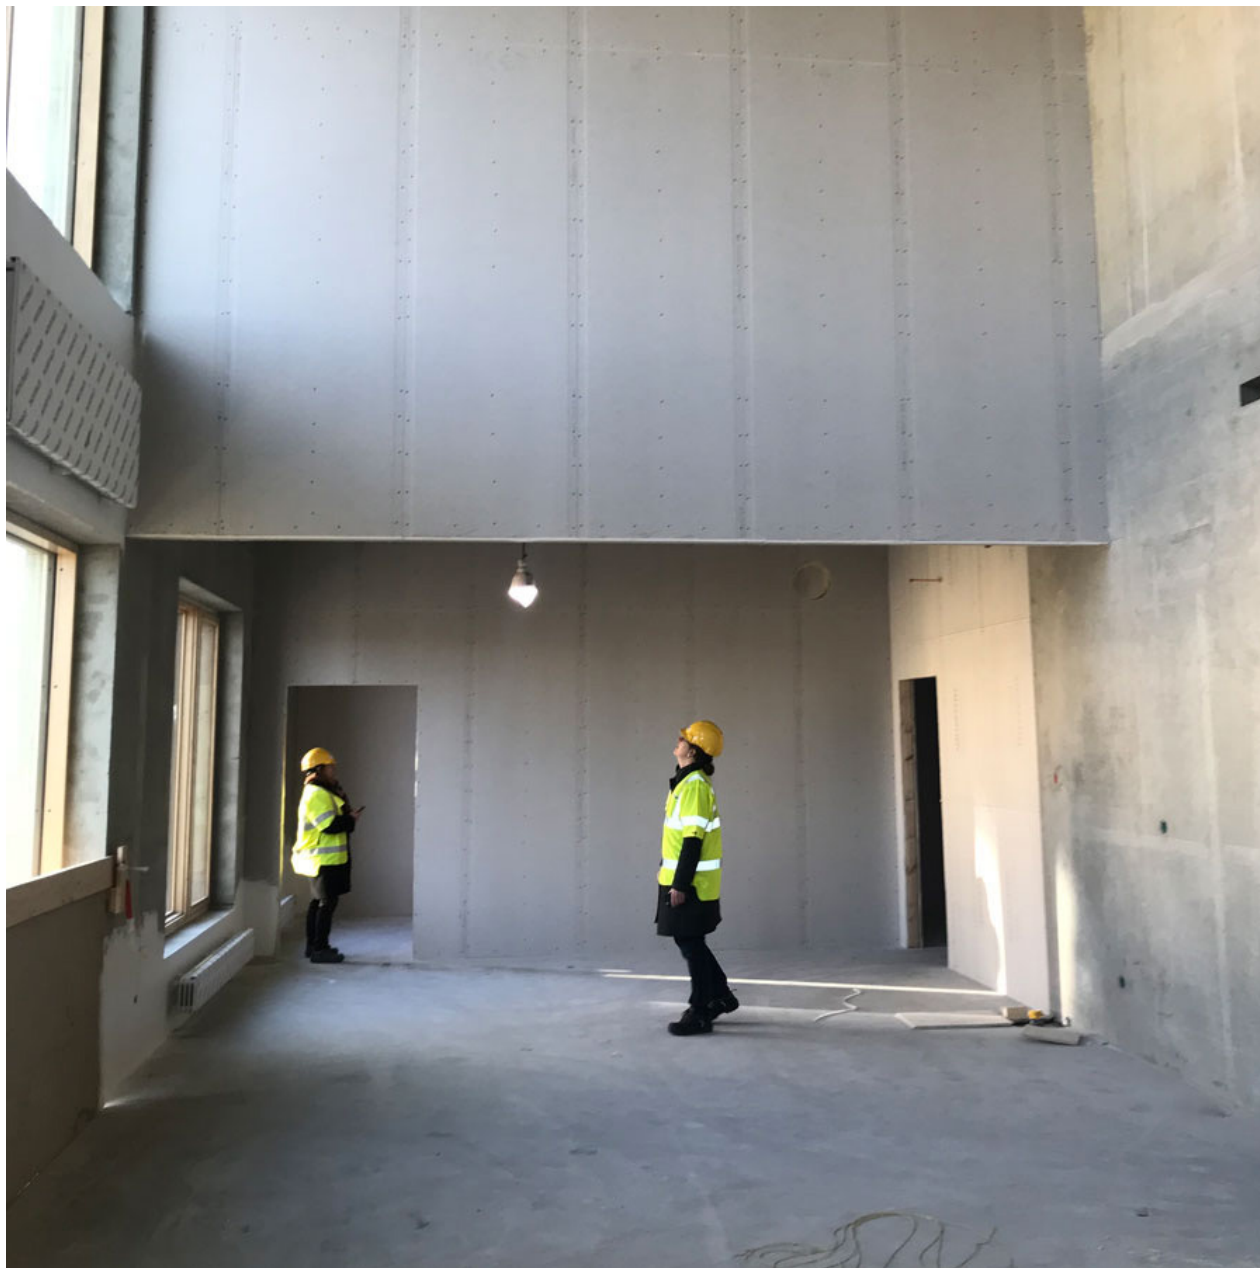

To make it more complicated...

Many new schools are needed

Many new schools are needed

Even more schools needs to be renovated

Many new schools are needed

Even more schools needs to be renovated

Huge amounts of tax money must be invested

Many new schools are needed

Even more schools needs to be renovated

Huge amounts of tax money must be invested

MANY decisions to be made

It is not only about building a house for a school.

It is not only about building a house for a school.

It is about building school.

Therefore Forum
Bygga
Skola.

- Sharing experiences

- Sharing experiences
- Networking

- Sharing experiences
- Networking
- Spreading knowledge and research

- Sharing experiences
- Networking
- Spreading knowledge and research
- Give decision basis in complex and sometimes complicated matters

Several activities

Several activities

Several activities

Several activities

Several activities

Several activities

A few reflections
about the Kinder egg (Überraschungs Ei) of school buildings...

- What learning environment should we choose?
- How can the school (and school design) be part of the local society?
- How can the shift in learning environments affect the climate change?

What learning environment should we choose?

What design supports learning for everyone...?

The school in the middle of the village

The school in the middle of the village – everyone wants it but few are succeeding. Why?

The climate change – what has that to do with learning environments...?

Thank you!

magnus.anclair@gmail.com

www.byggaskola.se

